

Permea

Company Brief

1. What is Permea?

Permea is India's first absorption-focused skincare brand. We use liposomal and exosomal delivery technology - which means our products are engineered to actually get through the skin barrier and work from within, not just sit on the surface.

Most skincare products - no matter how expensive - get rejected at the outermost layer of the skin. Around 90-95% of skincare products don't penetrate into the skin and shed off at the first layer itself. They never actually penetrate. Permea solves this by packaging active ingredients in microscopic lipid carriers (liposomes and exosomes) that the skin recognises and lets through, the same way a cell membrane works.

The brand positioning in one line: Absorption First. Always.

2. Content Pillars

We want students to create funny, relatable Reels that explain the absorption problem in skincare through an everyday analogy - and position Permea as the brand that solves it.

The core analogy we want them to build on -

A bouncer outside a club won't let a guy in stag. He gets rejected at the door. But the moment he shows up as a couple, he gets in - couple entry. Normal skincare is the stag guy. It gets stopped at the first layer of skin and never gets in. Permea, in liposomal or exosomal form, is the couple entry - the skin recognises it and lets it through.

Students should take this idea and recreate it in their own world - their own language, their own setting, their own humour. The brief is intentionally open so the content feels authentic and not scripted.

Some directions to explore:

- Act out the bouncer analogy literally - hostel gate, college canteen, friend's room - any "entry denied" situation works
- Use a different analogy altogether that communicates the same idea: a WhatsApp message on blue tick ignore, a CV rejected before the interview, a delivery guy denied at the society gate
- Explain it in a comedic talking-head format - just them speaking to camera, breaking it down for their audience like they're explaining it to a friend

- Create a skit with friends where one character is "normal skincare" and another is "Permea" and show the difference in how they're received

Format requirements:

- Duration: 30–60 seconds
- Posted as a Collaboration Reel with @permea.in tagged as collaborator
- Must include in caption: #AbsorptionFirst #PermeaSkin
- Language: Hindi, English, or Hinglish - whatever feels natural
- Must end with nominating 3 friends to make their own version within 48 hours

3. Preliminary Shortlisting Criteria

We are not looking for influencers with large followings. We are looking for students who are creative, comfortable on camera, and capable of communicating an idea in an engaging way. Shortlisting will be based on the following:

- Content quality: We will look at the student's last 3 Instagram posts or Reels. We are checking for basic editing, clear audio and visuals, and comfort in front of the camera. Production quality does not need to be high - raw and real works fine.
- Brief response: As part of registration, students will answer one question in 2–3 lines: "Describe a funny or relatable everyday situation where something gets rejected at the door before it can get in." This tests whether they can think creatively around the brief.
- Engagement rate: Likes and comments divided by followers on their last 3 posts. We prioritise genuine engagement over follower count. Above 1% is good, above 2% is great.
- Instagram basics: Minimum 300 followers, public account, active in the last 30 days. Niche does not matter.

4. Final judgement Criteria for Brand Wars

Each Reel will be scored out of 100 by a panel consisting of the Permea team and one representative from the MU Team.

- Clarity of the absorption message (25 points): Does the viewer walk away understanding that most skincare doesn't absorb - and that Permea does? The idea should land even for someone who has never thought about skincare science before.
- Creativity and originality (25 points): Did the student make the concept their own? Bonus for unexpected analogies, fresh settings, or a new way of telling the story that we haven't seen before.

- Humour and relatability (20 points): Does it make you smile or laugh? Does it feel like something you'd send to a friend? This is the virality driver and will be weighted seriously.
- Authenticity (15 points): Does it feel real - not like a paid promotion? Would their followers trust this? Stiff or overly scripted content scores low here regardless of production quality.
- Engagement achieved (15 points): Actual likes, comments, shares, and saves on the posted Reel within 48 hours of going live. Saves and shares count more than likes.
